WASHINGTON, May 5 (WP) .-President Nixon told members of the Senate and House Armed Services Committee today at a Cambodia war briefing that he is firmly committed to withdrawing U.S. troops from Cambodia before the monsoon rains start. The pull-out was promised within six to eight weeks, the congressmen said.

NEW YORK, May 5.-The plunge of prices on Wall Street deepened today, making the losses suffered in the current decline the worst since the depression as the Dow Jones industrial average dropped another 4.82 to close at 709.74. The price level was the lowest since August, 1962.

After the closs the Federal Reserve Board lowered the requirements for buying stock and convertible bonds on credit, a move expected to cushion the decline.

In Europe, anxiety over the drop in stock prices and the crises in Southeast Asia and the Middle East were credited with fueling a rise in the price of gold to a high for the year. Details, Page 9.

In addition, said Rep. Long, "I nam of aggression and described feel in my own heart that the the U.S. move into Cambodia as President acted hastily-not just without consulting Congress-but without consulting all his advisers. The liaste in which this was done suggests panic."

"If Rogers was acting in good faith—and I believe he was—if I were Rogers I would resign," said Rep. Long.
From Capitol Hill sources it was learned that on April 23, before the House group, Mr. Rogers was asked if the United States, in Cambodia and in Laos, was repeating the course that led to the massive U.S. involvement in Vietnam. Mr. Rogers said the Nixon administration policy is headed in just the opposite direction, through the program of U.S. troop with-drawals. He said that "if we find that we think that troops are necessary, and I'm not talking about just across the horder where somehody goes over-I'm talking about any sizable use of troops, we would consult Congress to the fullest extent possible."

"We have no incentive to escalate," said Mr. Rogers, adding, "our vhole incentive is to de-escalate. "Our whole motivation is the other way. I have said many times" that "I think the one lesson that the war in Victnam has taught us is that if you are going to fight a war of this kind satisfactorily you need public support and congressional support."

Scores of schools suspended classes or voted to stay out tomorrow. The Collège Press Service counted 208 campuses that were either closed or closing down, from Akron to Yale. At Dertmouth College in Hanover, N.H., President John Kemeny suspended classes with conferences to consider what he called the "constitutional crisis."

The overflow of emotion barely seemed containable. The nation was witnessing what amounted to a virtual general and uncoordinated strike by its college youth.

The campus protests began building up after President Nixon's speech last Thursday announcing the new assaults on Cambodia. The demonstrations were scattered and sporadic over the weekend. But the slaying yesterday of the Kent State youths rasped a nerve that vibrated everywhere today.

Charles F Palmer, the presi-dent of the National Student Association, blamed the killings on "national leaders" who have "plunged the country desper into the morass of the South-east Asian war." He called for memorial services Friday at schools and towns around the hursday. Leaders of the American Association of University Professors, representing 85,000 teachers, expressed "shock and hor-ror" at the Kent State deaths and called them "a tragic consequence of the prolonged mil-itary violence."

To Investigate Deaths The AAUP officials were creating a committee to investi-gate the Kent State shootings. Today they dispatched a staff member, Robert Van Waes, to the stricken campus,

The professors were a day behind 37 presidents of uni-versities. On Monday, they wrote Mr. Nixon urging him "to demonstrate unequivocally your determination to end the war." They warned of "the incalculable dangers of an unprecedent-ed alienation of America's youth." Signers included pres-idents of Amherst, Princeton, Columbia, Vassar, Johns Hop-kins, Notre Dame, Dartmouth and Pennsylvania.

But the striking feature of today's protests, both the violent breadth. They reached colleges as prestige-laden as Harvard d as obscure as New Mexico Highlands. .

When the protests turned violent, the object was almost invariably some symbol of milltary power. Fire damaged the Navy ROTC building at the University of Idaho in Moscow, Idaho. Thirty miles away in Lewiston, a National Guard armory was set ablaze and 25 trucks and jeeps were gutted. Clashes between police and students broke out in scattered places. In Madison, about 3,000 students at the University of Wisconsin tried to assault a Selective Service office. After battling for ten minutes, police with tear gas drove off the rockthrowing demonstrators. Other brief encounters took place on campus mails and Mayor William Dyke declared a state of emergency. Gov. Warren Knowles sent National Guardsmen to the campus. In Buffalo, N.Y., more than

1.000 students at the State University broke off from a noontime rally to march down Main Street, smashing windows of a bank and other establishments. Several dozen police cars finally blocked off the artery. In Salt Lake City, a homemade bomb was thrown into an ROTC building during an otherwise peaceful anti-war demonstration by about 2,000 students at the University of Utah. It caused minor damage. In Washington, about 1,000

The Congressional Role

the present emergency, Congress will do something more than fulminate or merely spin its wheels, or just say no. Despite the deep concern that is felt on Capitol Hill over the widening of the war in Indochina, many of those who are most critical of the President's action talk nonsense when they get around to what should he done. Congress should indeed be getting into the act, not in the role of a kibitzer, or a vindictive naysayer, but in that of a responsible national policy-making body.

The course advocated by Sens. McGovern, Hatfield, Goodell and Hughes is too reckless for serious consideration. Congress, they say, "must either legislate the conflict by declaring war or veto and end it." To declare war in the present situation would, in our view. he akin to madness, as these four gentlemen doubtless would agree. It would commit the nation to use of all its military, economic and moral resources in a remote part of the world where our interests are tangential and our military reach is already overextended. It would risk the possibility of involvement with both China and the Soviet Union without serving any imperative national purpose. It would imhed us in concrete when what we need is room for flexibility.

No doubt the real purpose of the Mc-Govern-Hatfield-Goodell-Hughes foursome is to focus attention on their alternative of vetoing and ending the war. But ending a war is not accomplished by the stroke of a pen or a denial of money. With our men still facing an enemy in many different areas of Sonth Viatnam, in Laos, and now Cambodia, no rational Congress is going to tell them to fight no more. And it would be scarcely less calamitous to declare that no funds could be spent in connection with that conflict after Dec. 31.

Congress could. however, adopt a national policy of withdrawal from Vietnam, leaving the timing of the exit flexible so that our forces there would encounter a minimum of danger and vacuum would not be created overnight. We should like to see Congress debate and act on such a policy. It would

The country has a right to expect that, in necessarily have to face some vital question. How important is continental Southeast Asia to our larger international policies? Does Vietnam have any vital relation to our national security? Just what is a "just peace" and have we the capacity to induce or impose or maintain it? What right do we have to eet ourselves up as the arbiter of the future of that area? At what point might it be said that we have accomplished all that could reasonably be expected of us?

If these issues are sincerely debated, we euspect that Congress will go on record in favor of a flexible withdrawal policy, as, indeed, the Nixon administration dld before the recent escalation fever set in. In any event. Congress ought to be shaping the national purpose. If it is going to reclaim the war power previously relinquished to the President, it has an obligation to take a substantial share of the responsibility for the course that ie to be pursued.

In the face of this great need for a reshaping of national policy, leaders of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee walked into a trap of its own making by demanding an audience with Mr. Nixon and reacted in petty fashion to the President's clever counter-suggestion that the Senate committee meet him jointly with the House Foreign Affairs Committee, Foreign Reiations had a right to try for a separate meeting. But no treaty is under discussion. So the President has an equal right to argue that the subject of such a session ought to be the broad national policy of liquidating the war in an orderly fashion, and that this concerns the House and the country as much as it does the Senate.

The time has come for discussion of a comprehensive policy-not for petty hickering or jurisdictional squabbles. There seems to be much awareness of the fact that the President's action has placed him on trial in the court of public opinion, and Congress is no less on trial in its own sphere. Can it only kibitz and flounder, or can it assume a positive role and an honest responsibility in shaping a national policy?

Even at the height of the cold war, it is doubtful that any official American pronouncement matched, much less exceeded. the bitterness of this Chinese indictment of the Soviet Union.

Moscow's reply a few days later gave witness to the fury evoked in Leonid Brezhnev by the Peking blast. The highest level Kremlin approval must have been required for Moscow radio's vilification of Mao personally

Nixon vs. 'Anarchy'

President Nixon decided to have his troops intervene in Cambodia regardless of the fact that the Phnom Penh government did not request this and was not even consulted. Yet. in his Thursday night epeech, the President spoke less of Cambodia than of keeping order in his country and throughout the world. Ha wants to fight "anarchy abroad and at home." This harangue proves that Washington is seeking in Sontheast Asia the political and military victory which The New York Times does not hesitate to call a hallucination. All means, therefore, are right for trying to reach this goal.

The White House had made it known that the massacres of Vietnamese by Cambodian troops would not influence the decision to aid Phnom Penh. The Saigon students whose leaders were tortured and who fight the Thieu regime are apparently also "imbecila firebrands." Mr. Nixon purely and simply ignores the Laotian and Cambodian leftist movements. They do not matter more than the Guatemalans or Dominicans who rebelled against dictatorships supported and financed by Washington and hy hig American private interests. Any internal criticism of a regime friendly to the United States is considered as an attack on American security. The Monroe Doctrine is being extended to the whole universe.

-From Le Monde (Paris).

President Nixon has turned his back on his own doctrine in Asia no matter how vehemently he insists that his dispatch of U.S. troops to Cambodia is no invasion of that country or escalation of the Indochina war. And his reasoning that he acted to save American lives and insure peace in Southeast Asia is too familiar to be credible. The Vietnam war escalated on the same argu-

Mr. Nixon, just like Lyndon B. Johnson before him, is too proud to see America's image tarnished and too prond to allow its first military defeat in its prond 190-year

-From the Manila Times.

In our opinion, President Nixon has taken a dangerous political gamble. Past experiences of the Vietnam war tell us that there will be no military solution to the problem. Will not the open interference in Cambodia wreck the Paris peace talks? Although the United States seems to envisage a quick conclusion to the present operation in six to eight weeks, there is no guarantee that it will end as the United States expects. Lon Nol's Cambodian forces do not seem to be in good shape. In order to drive the Communist forces out of Cambodia, the United States may be forced to increase its aid and worse, still, its forces.

A Dismal View From the Seine

By C. L. Sulzberger

PARIS.—The French government is convinced that United States entry into Cambodia hasat least for the short-term future completely changed the international situation and set back a gradual inching toward political settlements in both the Middle East and Southeast Asia

Moreover, there isn't any doubt that Paris feels Washington's failure to consult France on this dramatic move violates the spirit of an accord on bilateral consultations arranged during President Nixon's visit bere last year and reaffirmed when President Pompidou went to the United States in February.

Prance believes the Russians have been placed in a position where, unless they get tough, they will lose influence to China in the Communist world. It is assumed the most logical way for Moscow to support ideological friends in Southeast Asia is by creating a diversion in the Middle East to draw American attention away from Vietnam and Cambodia, Paris only hopes such a move can be controlled and limited.

French Proposal

Right or wrong, the French telt that slow but discernible progress toward settlement was being registered at both ends of Asia when the Cambodian crisis exploded. Paris had proposed a generalized Indochinese peace conference which, although coolly received abroad, seemed to suft the aims The United States sought disengagement, the French sought sought to frustrate China's bld for regional leadership.

Now even the faint prospect of such a conference is recognized as gone. Paris won't put the idea in any icebox and will continue revive it from time to time, but it is obviously disappointed. Likewise, it is felt here that patient initiatives to calm down the Middle East have been tragically

This capital thought the positions of America, Russia, Britain and France had actually been plan, presented by Assistant Sec- that, while American might will retary Sisco, was not viewed as not be defeated in the Cambodian entirely negative.

Moreover, it was felt that, despite angry propaganda, the Soviet and U.S. stands were now less far apart. The Russians admitted there could be no unconditional isracli withdrawal from areas occupied in the 1967 war and the Americans admitted there must be such a withdrawal, except for minimal border rectifications.

Big-Tico Deal?

Paris is sure there has been deal between Moscow and Washington limiting arms shipments to the Middle East and that the dispatch to Nasser of Soviet missiles, aircraft and crews doesn't violate this. The belief is that without such an accord Nixon would already have sent Israel the additional P-4 jets it requested. The French argue that the military balance has not been altered by the new Russian weapons and crews because they are rigidly limited to defensive assignments.

But both the tentative move by the superpowers to ration weapons shipments and spail like Big Four progress toward agreement among themselves—by, initially, catalog-ing all points of accord and discord—have now been upset. Just as in 1956, Soviet troubles in Poland and Hungary encouraged Britain and France to go shead with their disastrous Suez expedition, there is a suspicion Moscow may feel forced to use the Middle East as the

The logic is simply that the U.S.S.R. cannot mount any kind of expeditionary force to help Southeast Asian Communists, thus easing China from the forefrons but it can easily provoke a new Arab-Israeli crisis and scare the daylights out of American doves. Furthermore, although nobody knows much about either his plans or his position, there are some here who believe such an idea would appeal to Brezhnev.

The upshot is that France is angrier with the United States than it has so far said officially and also it is unhappy to see its two pet diplomatic enterprises battle, neither can it triumph.

This country believes it learned a hard truth the hard way in its own Indochina and Algerian campaigns and insists on regarding the American commitment in Vietnam as another form of colonial war and therefore unwinnable. Such is the mood of official France today-sad, embittered, irked with the United States, deeply worried about the immediate future.

I am angry. I am angry at all dent who was elected to office by a majority. I am angry at your apparent naiveness at internation Communism, especially the Chi-nese type. I am angry that you do not see the aftereffects of not clearing out the North Vietnam sanctuaries in Cambodia.

The Vietnam war is like playing a chess game with someone who cheats. How would you like to play with one who moves his bishops. like rooks and his king like a queen? The United States has used every possible conventional means to bring this war to a peaceful end, but how can one be reasonable to a rascal?

Have you forgotten China? Let me ask you how the Communists took over China. Did they not make military preparations while the peace conference was still going on? Do you ever learn from history? Did the Communists honor the cease-fire in Kores? Do you remember the harassments of the Berlin crises? Did the Soviet Union do anything to make the Arabs recognize Israel?

I am also angry at the so-called moving closer to each other. Cairo's suddenly kicked into a cocked hat. Nasi Germany? If you and these reaction to the latest U.S. peace Moreover, the French are positive allies are so clever to criticize the ures in the administration are now planting all kinds of stories justify the latest widening of And not surprisingly, "explanations" range from fear the Communists would make Cambodia an invincible redoubt to hopes of dealing them a hard blow that would force serious peace negotiations.

For as these contradictory arguments suggest, the real crisis has been in Washington, not Southeast Asia. This country floundered into Cambodia because of the weekness of men who knew much better. Consider, first, Secretary of Defense Melvin Laird. He is a politico of rare intelligence and resource. He is the chief architect of the Vietnamization policy for eteadily scaling down this country's role in the war. And he has re-inforced that scaling down by a defense budget that tended to militate against other alternatives. But Mr. Laird is a politician pure. He has never done anything else himself, and be is pleased to think that politics is the master of all subjects. He based his scheme for scaling down the fighting entirely on the political needs of this country. Otherwise he left all the strategic matters to the armed services. Far from gathering round his own office a group of independent strategy analysts, he vested these functions in a corps of right-wing clowns under Assistant Secretary Warren Nutter.

He needs to build makes plain, to have neaded off a cathedral of theory to discover proposals for an amphibious operation against North Vietnam.

Then there is Secretary of State William Rogers. He is a man of strong judgment and good common sense. He knows that nothing that happened on the ground in Cambodia could seriously affect the security of the United States. And he wanted very badly to contain the war.

But Mr. Rogers took office with little knowledge of foreign affairs. He has not done the work required for a grasp of detailed problems. Rather, he has tended to delegate to subordinates. And that recent. in the present case, to Under Secretury U. Alexis Johnson.

As everybody but Mr. Rogers seems to know, however, Mr. Johnson has always been the Pentagon's man in the State Department. His idea of planning for a problem is to work out contingency arrangements for use of military force. He doesn't begin to know what it means to work out a large policy. So when the crunch came, State had no major course of diplomatic action to propose. It had nothing. Still another case in point is Henry Kissinger, the President's chief foreign policy adviser. Mr. a strong President, able to stand Kissinger understands that the up alone to the pressures of the best way out of the war is through military. For decades now, the major direction of political thought in America has been to build up the powers of the presidency, direct and impiled as against the powers of the legislative branch. While this had much to recommend it in some areas of policy, the result was to accelerate the diminution of congressional prestige and prerogative and to blind the nation to the posit was creating in the White House. ### Dance Companies Sink Gracefully Down the Drain

By Clive Barnes

HEW YORK, May 5 (NYT),-It seems that 1970 might the year we see our ballet mpanies sink gracefully down e drain one by one. I can e the gravestone now: "Ameren Dance: Born Circa 1920. ied 1970. RIP."

. The situation is becoming menable. The New York City allet has been struck by memrs of the New York City Bal-Orchestra, Local 802, Ameran Federation of Musicians.

The American Dance Theater Alvin Ailey, which has just ampleted a highly acclaimed ason at the Brooklyn Acadny of Music, has announced, ore in sorrow than in anger, s dissolution. The company at resent is in great performing mdition. Alley has pushed its assibilities as far as they can

Clive Barnes of The ew York Times wrote: "Comersonal reservations, deserves : be a hit in a lean season. is a very New York show and will be particularly popular

"Mahagonny," written in the ite 1920s by Bertolt Brecht, gored by Kurt Well, and stagi by Carmen Capalbo, got ood reviews from two out of aree critics in its debut on re American stage at the An-erson Theater. Clive Barnes role: "It is a great and lovely must think of dance as the eternal panhandler. And believe me the world at large is right. Dance needs money, and I cannot possibly say where it is coming from. American Ballet Theater is facing its most expensive sesson yet. It may not make it. City Center Joffrey Ballet, the Cunningham Company, the Taylor Company, all these are in specific trouble. The Harkness Ballet, from which Rebekah Harkness is withdrawing her immediate support, has been summoned home in the middle of a prestigious European tour for a period of reappraisal and readjustment. Miss Harkness, it seems, does not like the way the company is going. And after all it is her company, so who should know better? Certainly not its directors. Benjamin Harkarvy and Lawrence Rhodes, who are, after all, merely employees.

Is there any note of hope that can be sounded? Well, the National Ballet in Washington has just given us a lively new "Cinderella." choreographed hy Ben Stevenson, and Marcel Marceau has just ended a stand at the City Center which once more effortlessly demonstrated the mystery and wonder of Marceau's theatrical genius. Marceau is moving into new areas of dance, mime and theater.

For the rest, luckily, we have Britain's Royal Ballet at the Metropolitan Opera House, ensuring that ballet is not totally absent from Lincoln Center.

"A Place for Poliy," a comedy about a wife with a predatory older sister, directed by Ronny Graham, pleased none of the critics and closed after one performance. #### Movies in Variations on Cannes: Dostoevski Cannes, May 5.—The ways of film festivals are inscrutable. Had Luis Bunuel's new "Tristana" (already in Paris movie houses, IHT May 2-31, been entered in the Cannes movie race. it would certainly be the recipient of honors. Instead it was shown out of competition today. It was greatly admired, but it will not get a prize. On the official program tonight is "Le Dernier Saut," starring two fine French actors, Mairice Ronet and Michel Bouquet. This melodrama, directed hy Edouard Luntz, seeks to play variation on Dotstoevski's "Crime and Punishment" theme.

By Thomas Quinn Curtiss

Ronet impersonates a battlehardened paratrooper who murders his faithless, Oriental wife. The soldier's absence from camp on the fatal night has not been detected; he hefriends the cynical inspector who is in charge of solving the crime. This second part is superbly taken by Bouquet and the acting duel of the two stars is sufficient to hold one's attention, although otherwise 'Le Dernier Saut" is just another detective story and one rather lacking in the necessary vigor and suspense.

The distinguished conductor Herbert von Karajan extends his activities in a television film version of "Pagilacci," presented at a special matinee this afternoon. In this venture Von Karajan has not only directed the La Scala orchestra's rendition of the Leoncarallo score, but also directed the production of the opera. The stage management of the action and the color photography are both of the first order, as is the musical recording, which possesses an unusual clarity and tone. But the synchronization demands immediate improvement. If this flaw is corrected, the film, a full-length feature, would doubtless find a worldwide public.

On the Arts Agenda.

NEW YORK, May 5 (NYT). -In the unlikely event that all goes well, the New Yorker may finish reprinting "Ulysses" about 90 years from now.

· For some mouths, the New Yorker has been working its way line by line through James Joyce's monumental novel of a day in the life of Duhlin. It has been a slow process. The most recent issue takes the reader about two-thirds of the way down page 8 of a 733-page edi-

What might be called the New Yorker edition of Joyce's epic is scarcely a shout in the streets. It is set in small type in the "Goings on About Town" department of the magazine, the section that describes itself as "a conscientious calendar of events of interest."

The whole undertaking, of course, is a joke, !"Agenbit of inwit," as Joyce might, and in quite another context did, say.)
A spokesman for the weekly magazine said that the writer of the capsule reviews had tired of "writing the same things" about the longest-running shows and decided to vary his weekly chore by "working his way through 'Ulysses.'"

Only the reader who follows the roller-coaster of narrow columns as far as the listing of long-run musicals wili experience the stylislic swoop from the New Yorker's closely parsed prose to Joyce's somewhat different verbal rejoicings.

Following the heading. "The Fantasticks," the May 2 issue -picking up where the previous week's issue left off-carries, not the compressed reLONDON.—The centenary commemoration is a conventional device for rendering homage to those who have stood out above others in society, or made significant contributions to it. That, at least, is a conventional way of looking at it,

The average music lover, at the mention of Lehar's name, will be reminded of "The Merry Widow," or at least of the famous waltz, and of Richard Tauber singing "Dein Ist Mein Ganzes Herz.' Many more may recognize the "Gold and Silver" waltz without knowing that it was written by Lehár. There was a lot more to Lehar than that, Between "The Merry Widow" (1905) and "Giuditta" (1934) came "The Count of Luxembourg," "Gypsy "Frasquita," "Frederica," "Paganini" and "The Land of Smiles." They were all enormously successful, not only in Vienna, Budapest and Berlin, but also in London and New York, Lehar after Johann Strauss, was the great master of The Viennese operetta, preeminent in a genera-tion that Included Oscar Straus, Leo Fall, Raiph Benatzky, Emmerich Kalman, Rudolph Frimi and Sigmund Romberg.

the Roof" and "Hello, Dolly!" This carries the reader 4 1/2 lines further into "Ulysses." "Fantasticks" in Fall

A check of back issues of the New Yorker indicates that writer's cramp set in last fall so far as "The Fantasticks," was concerned. "Fiddler" and "Dolly" were added in Februar; of this year.

The renewed copyright on "Ulysses" has not run out. But Milton Greenstein, a vice-president of the magazine, said that the question of royalties was unlikely to arise: "The whole thing is a joke. Random House the novel's U.S. publishers: doesn't care."

The readers don't seem to care, either. Mr. Greenstein said. "I think they're amus-He dismissed the possibility that someone, possibly a little old lady visiting from Dubuque, might be seeking enlightenment about the plot-line of "Hello. Dolly!" or the suitability of "The Fantasticks." and find the snippets of life in Dublin distressingly confusing. "No." he said, "not New Yorker readers."

. Another way is to think of it as a painless, even self-congratulatory means of making amends for thoughtless neglect. This would hardly apply in the case of Beethoven, of whose music we are hearing hardly more in this bicentenary year than in any other. But it would apply pretty well to all the Berlioz we heard last year, the centenary o" his death. And it applies absolutely to the centenary of Franz Lehar's birth, which fell on April 30, and which the RBC Concert Orchestra has just celebrated with a sumptuous coucert in the Royal Pestival Hail, lineirs, it is simply because he was the more complote composer. They all wrote lovely melodics, and they scored well enough; but with Lehar, as one felt throughout a concert offering a generous cross-section of his output, it war not so much a question of good tunes and competent workmanship as of unflagging melodic felicity, of fastidious harmonic procedure, of buoyant rhythms and of the most sensitive and perceptive

In one respect, of course. Lehar's music cannot deny its age. The music itself is as fresh and de ightful as ever, but the conventions which governed its form and many of its devices are not. The high-note endings of the arms and duets, for example, seem tediously athletic and hanal—as they are beginning to seem in opera, too-and the language of the texts, whether in German or in Iranslation, is appalling

Lchar worked closer to opera than did most other operetta composers after Johann Strauss. Indeed, his works were commonly giren in opera houses, and their best singers were opera singers. In the past half century the musical theater, excluding opera, has tended toward a less formal, less pretentious kind of singing, and its songs have been sung hest by the new American type of popular singer.

Lehar's music was played idiomatically under the direction of Vilem Tausky, a nephew of Leo Fall, and the songs were sung very well by Elizaheth Harwood and Rowland Jones. The latter, particularly, han clearly studied the Tauher records; and if his suiging hardly effaced one's memories of Tauber, it awakened them.

Tauber and Lehar both died, by appropriate coincidence, in 1948. It was not so much the end of an era as it was the end of a genre which, thanks to their genius, had outlived its era.

Move Effective Today

Fed Lowers Margin Requirements

By Eileen Shanahan
WASMINGTON, May 5 (NYT).—The Federal Reserve Board reduced the margin requirements on stock purchases from 80 to 65 percent, effective

The move means that stock buyers will have to make a cash payment of at least 65 percent of the purchase price of any stock they huy, rather than the 80 percent that has been required for the rest two years.

The reduction brings the margin requirement to its lowest level in nearly seven years. The margin requirement has been 80 percent since June, 1988, w. which time it was raised rom 70 percent. The only time that the margin requirement has been as low as 65 percent in the rast decada was during the period from July, 1962, to November, 1963, when it was 50 percent.

In announcing the reduction, the Fed made no mention of the recent sharp decline in stock prices nor of the appeals that have been made by securities industry leaders for a cut in margins. The Fed announcement, instead, gave as the onl; reason for its action the recent decline in the amount of credit that is currently outstanding in the etock market. This is the only stan-dard that the Securities Act of 1934 permits the Fed to consider in setting stock margin require-

Whether the reduction might stimulate an upturn in stock prices remained to be seen. The official Fed spokesman said today that so far as can be determined, there is no known requirements and stock prices."

The Fed said that it had acted because the amount of credit that has been extended by brokers to their margin customers has dropped from $6.7 billion in June, 1968, to $4.5 billion in March of this year, the latest month for which full figures are available.

The credit extended by banks for purchasing or carrying securities has declined from the peak $2.8 billion that it reached last February to $2.4 billion now, the Fea said.

The margin requirement for convertible bonds s also to be reduced, effective tomorrow, from by percen. u 50 percent. Since these sonds represent something setween an investment in stocks and an investment in bonds, and are therefore considered less speculative than stocks the margin requirement covering them has been ower than the requirement for stocks. The Fed's action came more than two months after Robert W. Hasck, the president of the New York Stock Exchange, first asked the Fed to consider a margin cut.

That request was turned down, in part, because the Fed feit it could not defend a step that could increase the amount of credit that was tied up in stocks at a time when both bome building and construction of state and local gov-ernment facilities were being hurt by chortages of

Wall Street Decline Forces Collateral Call

By H. Erich Heinemann

NEW YORK, May 5 (NYT).-The sharp decline in stock prices has forced banks and brokers to make an increasing number of margin calls on their customers, but forced sales of collateral meet ootstanding debts did not appear-up until yesterday—to have been sufficiently large to have been a significant factor in the market

Major mutual funds had increased the tempo of their selling of stocks in order to build up their holdings of cash and government securities. but neither the funds nor their more speculative cousins—the hedge funds—appeared to be dump-ing stocks in the current market decline.

These conclusions emerged from a check with a cross section of bankers, brokers, and fund man-

Some 'Serious Problems'

Chasa Manhattan Bank and Bankers Trust Co. both had a "rising tempo" of margin calls, but few, if any, forced sales of collateral. A senior officer of another major bank, who asked not to be identified, said that margin calls in his institution had increased sharply, and that some "serious problems" had developed with a few individual investors, who were not prepared

To many analysis, however, the potential problem in the current market break did not lie in the regulated accounts that are subject to the margin requirement, but rather leans among the billions of dollars of en-called 'mon-purpose loans that are completely unregulated.

No one knows what the amounts of such loaus are, because the Federal Reserve bas not collected data on them since the late 1930s. But in a special survey taken subsequent to the 1982 market break, the Fed discovered that total loans eccured by stocks and bonds (other than those to brokers, dealers or other banks; were $10.9 billion on Sept. 26, 1962, at a time when the banks were reporting roughly $1.9 billion in loans covered by the margin rules,
If the same ratio of more than 5 to 4 applies today, when loans for the purpose of purchasing or carrying securities total more than 54 billion. total loans secured by stocks and bonds could be over $20 billion. There are no firm rules governing the so-called

"non-purpose" loans that are excluded from the margin rules (in other words loans not for the purposes of purchasing or carrying scennities; but in general, they have far less collateral behind then than the regulated loans, and thus are far more susceptible to margin calls.

Meanwhile, a sampling of mutual-fund managers showed a disposition to raise cash to take advantage of values that they believe will appear over the next several weeks and to bedge against the possibility that large numbers of investors will demand redemption of their shares. The fund men Insist, bowever, that redemp-

The great switch is on the state of the stat

It costs your client NOTHING to switch (all IIG funds are no load) Ment.

"Mr. Mutual Fund", Walter Lutz, switched to IIG. Bob Wagner, former Mayor of New York City, and recently Ambassador to Spain, switched to HG.

Why did these two big men switch to IIG? Because IIG is the fastest growing financial company in the world. Why are we the fastest growing financial company in the world? Because we pay a full non-reducing commission up to 7% on all new and switched business for the Real Estate Fund of America and The Fund of the Seven Seas

People with IIG make money. That is the name of our business -MONEY. Salesmen all over the world, from every fund possible, have switched to IIG, and have brought to us millions of dollars in switches. They know their customers, They know what they have bought. They know what their monetary position is. They know their dissatisfactions, and now they are ready to switch. THE GREAT SWITCH IS ON. Are you as a Salesman and a Manager ready to switch to the Real Estate Fund of America and The Fund of the Seven Seas-IIG Products? Make up to 7% 12 3 non-reducing commission total business. That is why IIG is the fastest growing financial company in the entire world. Everybody makes money with us. If you are looking for a career with IIG we need Lawyers, Agency Development men, Security men, National Fund: Administrators, Processors Book-keepers, Sales Managers, and Real Estate Developers. We intend to double our staff in London from 125 to 250 in the next 45 days-contact DARRA MISTRY, Hotel President, Geneva. Tel: 3111000 or DAWN RICE, Senior Vice-President, P.O. Box 10, Thorn House

BRIDGE

By Alan Truscott

If experts are asked to name the world's best tournament director, they will be virtually unanimous in selecting Harold Franklin, a 54-year-old Englishman who has helped to organize championships and tournaments in Britain, Continental Europe and other parts of the world for almost a quarter of a century. Franklin is not only a great organizer but also a fine player, as can be judged from the dia-gramed deal, played in a London rubber bridge game. He was pushed by an over-ebullient partner into a hopeless slam contract and had a lucky break when West made an imaginative opening lead. As East had supported dia-monds, West believed that his monds, west beneved that his partner was likely to have the jack of that suit. He led the diamond two, playing the low-est available card as a suitpreference signal for the return of the low-ranking club suit. He would have liked to snatch back his lead when the jack appeared in dummy, but it was too late.

When South recovered from his surprise at winning the first trick, he played three top trumps ending in his hand. The jack did not fall, and the declarer's prospects of making 12 tricks were still poor.

South saw, however, that he could give East a chance to make an error. He led to the heart ace and returned a heart.
This play laid a double trap for East. If he ruffed, South would have been able to claim the remaining tricks. East saw through this, knowing that it was likely to be wrong to ruff a loser, but he fell into the second half of the trap by discarding a diamond.

South won with the heart king and cashed five club tricks. At the 12th trick he led dummy's remaining diamond, scoring his spade nine en passant to make the siam. He would have failed if East had seen the necessity to discard one of his worthless clubs so he could trump in while South still had a heart loser. NORTH

By Paul West, Harper & Row. 244 pp. $6.55.

Reviewed by Joyce Carol Oates

THIS very human and appealing novel, a kind of equal to the author's earlier "Alley Jaggers," assembles a group of pathetic, loquacious, bouncy characters in and around the dreary Midlands They town of Shalethorpe. certainly don't accomplish much in life, except to make things complicated for themselves, but they make their way with dignity and they dream comic, absurd, oddly touching dreams the heroine, Dot, imagines an ideal future with her husband, ideal future with her husband, saying, "... one day ... we'll move clean out, to a place with a big green lawn ... and we'd be walking the toddler on the lawn, you see, laughing like mad; just as if three angels had followed. fallen down our chimney and turned out to be us."

It will never happen, of course. The husband, Alley Jaggers, is in prison for having strangled (not quite deliberately) strangled (not quite deliberately) a young woman and then having raped her (deliberately) and the wife. Dot Jaggers, is having a difficult time keeping her sanity. She must travel out to visit Alley in prison —where Alley, under the influence of draws and prescherfluence of drugs and psychiatrists, seems to be disintegrat-ing and she must travel to visit her senile father in an old folks' home, which is not to his liking. In between she must take care of Alley's nagging, selfish, lazy Mam, who lives with her, and she must fend off overly enthusiastic customers at the local pub, where she works as a barmaid. And—though her husband is in jail—she discovers that she is pregnant. Dot Jaggers, in her midtwenties, is frank and argu-mentative and quite decent, though she does go in for a bout of minor prostitution—but only for the money. Her obsession is to have a child for Alley, a child that will be Al-ley's in spite of the fact that another man had actually fathered it.

Dot's adventures in Shale-thorpe are mainly seen from her own point of view, in a lively stream of consciousness, but from time to time we get a glimpse of this woman as she appears to others:

"Everything about her—the heavy set of the trunk, like flushed thick legs planted side by side in sensible shoes," her. by side in sensible shoes, ther fist on the cup, the unvarying expression of her face locked between haughty and shy—con-tradicts the black lines penciled along her eyelids, the . . . rouge on her cheeks, the scarlet smudge of her mouth. She is at once dour, grave and stolid, flashy, light and coquettish. It pinned a glossy pinup on a vestry door."

Men are awkward at handling babies, however, and Paul West is no exception. As soon as Dot becomes pregnant he seems to lose her—her speculations become increasingly lyric and philosophical, less convincingly her own. "I'm Expecting to Live Quite Soon" is really a novel of voices, the mingling and clashing of various lives as they are expressed in words. Very little happens, really; yet a great deal happens, and Do Jaggers must beer the burder of the novel's ambitious aims Though we are supposed to believe in her essential good ness and instinctive wisdom we are also supposed to be lieve that she would be cruelt ignorant enough to name he baby girl "Hopalong Cassidy and to expose her to weathe that would cause pneumoni and probable death in an but a literary infant.

After her baby's birth, Do is subjected to abuse from he mother-in-law and her neigh bors, and she fears Alley's in creasing strangeness. So sh leaves home. She camps on she hitchnikes, she winds u in a camp of "trogs" who in in a cave and who take her is She "finds" herself ("We come dying on our own, don we?" "The main thing to manage") and returns hor-again, to discover that he lather has died and that si must live out her life for A ley, "living in the daylight; his shadow and in his name "I'm Expecting to Live Qui

Federal Judge Enjoins

Pro Basketball Merger

By Mark Asher

yesterday granted a preliminary injunction barring a projected merger of the two professional basketball leagues without the ap-the American and National Baskethall Associations to resume tentative marger negotiations and other meetings preparatory to seeking congressional exemption from anti-trust laws.

The stipulation had been agreed upon by lawyers for the threa parties involved—the NBA Flayers Association, the ABA and the NBA. The new order abrogates a temporary restraining order issued on April 17 that prohibited the leagues from even talking which wish to end a salary war. Now the leagues must get to work on legislation similar to that pro football got passed in

The NBA player representatives, who obtained the injunction, bave indicated they will fight the leagues in Congress. They have hired a Washington attorney. Bill Bradley of the New York

NFL nor AFL Players' Associations fought the football merger.

"I have not heard from my lawyers yet," said ABA commissioner Jack Dolph from his New York office. "But my secretary told ma the order we expected had been issued."

Capa, who are scheduled to move in the current merger plans, said, "We now have shelter under which we can work and not be afraid of someone putting up a lawsuit while we are talking to Congress, We're at the point we wanted to be."

"The leagues schieved a lot of mileage under what happened today (Monday)." Foreman said, "There isn't an attorney worth two cents who would tell you that we could merge without Congressiona, approval. We've always acknowledged that we would have to go to the Congress."

Judge Tenney's ruling technically will remain in effect until a trial occides the issue. But Foreman indicated that for all practical purposes, the player representatives anti-trust suit will

Oriental Explanations

By Russell Baker

WASHINGTON, — And now, gentlemen, everything should be perfectly clear. Are there any questions?

Q. In his speech President Nixon suggests that the United States has never been defeated in a war. I understand the British Army captured Washington in the War of 1812, burnt down both the Capitol and the White House and sent President and Mrs. Madison running for their lives. If that isn't being defeated, what is?

Baker

A. Shut up. Are there any more ouestions? Q. Yes. I was surprised to learn, just at the moment we were invading them, that the Parrot's Beak and the Fishbook existed. Are there any other danger spots with color-ful names like these of which I should be eware?

A. Only one. In addition to the Parrote Beak and the Fishhook, there is the extremely dangerous Horse's Mouth. It is an undulating swempy area bounded on the north by the White House and on the South by the Pentagon. This is the only area in the world heavily infested with people who are certain they know what is going on in Southeast Asia.

Q. Herbert G. Klein, White House communications director. says that a private poll shows that 65 percent of 1,025 scien-tifically selected persons support the President's action. That 22 percent oppose it and that 13 percent heve no opinion. My question is this; what is a White House communicais a Wine; tions director?

A. A. White House communications director is a person smart enough to know that if you take a poll immediately after a President has spoken about anything on television, 65 percent of all scientifically selected persons will support the President proposes to do.

Q. But 13 percent had no opinion. How can a scientifically selected person have no opinion?

A. If you had listened to Vice-President Agnew Friday night you would not ask such dumb questions. As Mr. Agnew pointed out, persons who disagree with the President—even if they are decently motivated must realize that the President is the only person who has all the facts needed to form a sound judgment. Persons who had no opinion in the poll probably reasoned that having an opinion would be incompetent on their pert, and a waste of

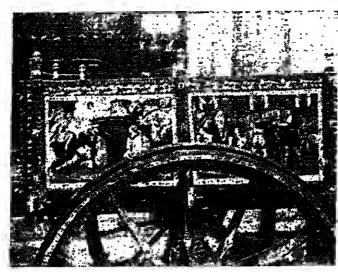

Q. I am the younger brother of a soldler in Vietnam, and I was very happy when the President said that invading Cambodia would give us younger brothers e chance to grow lip in a world of peace, freedom and justice. My older brother is 19, going on 20...

Would you get to the point. Shorty? Q. Well, it's this: I'm now

When my older brother who is now in Vietnam was 13. be hed an older brother in Vietnam. This was back in 1964. I was 7 then. My older brother who is now in Vietnam was then 13, and his older brother was 19, going on 20. Well my older brother—the 13year-old of 1964 was called to meeting just like this one that year, and they explained that his older brother was going Vietnam so that he the older brother's younger brother -would have a chance to grow up in a world of peace and freedom and justice.

A. Unfortunately for your older brother, that turned out to be in error. Does that answer your question, son? To err is human, especially in the Pentagon. Keep that in mind the next time one of these campus bums tells you how inhuman the Pentagon is Keep it in mind until you're 19, going on 30 and you won't be too surprised if you turn up in Southeast Asia, fighting balfway around the world not for territory, not for glory but so that your younger brother can have a chance to grow up in a world of peace and freedom, and justice. In the meantime, keep laughing.

Sicilian Carts Are Still Rolling Along

By Shari Steiner

TRAPANI, Sicily.—"They're only toys now," sighed a fat market woman behind a steaming vat of boiled potatoes. 'It's really too bad. You should have seen those carts years ego, when we really made beautiful ones."

The cart she referred to was a 6-inchhigh ministure, complete with horse and fancy harness, that had just been paraded beneath her nose by a 5-year-old

However, throughout Sicily, one does still see the colorful carts carrying wares to market, or clattering slowly throngs twisting, streets while the driver chants 'Carciofi, carciofi, brutti ma buoni" [artichokes, artichokes, ugly but good]. The back streets of cities have carts piled with vegetables and fruits and funeral wreaths.

But one must agree with the market woman. Most of the carts seen today are not as ornate as the carrezze of uniy 50 years ago. The workshops in Palernio on the Via delle Prigione end the Villa dei Mostri have dwindled from bustling operations of ten or 15 specialists to dusty shops with only a few artisans to carry on the tradition. Many of the carts built today are simply band painted Cart making has been an exuberant mode of folk art all over Italy, but nowhere was the craft developed as extensively as in Sicily. The decorations here are psychedelic explosions.

Shafts and wheel epokes are adorned with knights and cherubs and flowers. The flat sideboards portray simple etories of big family meals, the meeting of two lovers or a baptism. Or they present a carefully thought out series from a medieval passion play, with emphasis on the bloody fates of the martyrs, and the courageous Orlando saving the virtuous Angelica. Saint George killing the dragon is the all-time fevorite in Italy, Saint George is not the patron of England and the soldier, but the savior of the horseman). Even the insides of the cart are painted. Pure colors are used for intricate geometric designs, which are combined with baroque portraits at the center point of the floor.

The history of the art of cart making is shrouded. Pindar, 500 years before Christ, referred to the "colorful carts of The designs show influence of the Byzantine occupation of the 7th and 8th centuries and the Arab occupation of the 9th and 10th. Orlando and Saint George come from the Crusades and the Norman occupation.

On the other hand, carts dating before the 18th century are not known to exist. Scholars argue that since Sicily had no extensive road system until that time, it is unlikely that carts were in use.

Nevertheless, there is no more prized item for Sicilian folk art collectors than the u carruzzieri. This is the central crossbar of the cart, located just above the axle, traditionally the most heavily adorned part.

Even on the plainest carts, this piece is hand carved. Often it is topped with a lace of flower-and-bird iron work that has been done so carefully it looks like part of the wood carving. The piece is brightly painted, and, again, usually depicts stories of Orlando and his adven-

Cart dimensions are determined by place of origin. Trapani, the leading part making province of the island, has vehicles of about 3 1/2 feet by 4 feet. Palermo carts measure a few inches bigger. In the eastern section of the island carts are still larger. In all versions, sideboards are about 16 inches high. The front and the back pieces are hinged to lie flat to facilitate loading. Side pieces have three decorated uprights to give added strength. The two large wheels each have 12 spokes. Horses traditionally draw the carts, but mules and donkeys are also used. The trappines on the harnesses would do honor to a Nepal wedding procession.

The basic leather is festooned from stem to stern with richly embroidered red yellow and gold braid. It is hung with rows and rows of tassels, bells and mirrors. Some say these are symbols to ward off the devil. Others say that they are part of the Arab decorative influence.

Bridles are also richly braided. In the middle of the animal's back and on the top of the head, great sprays of dyed plumes are mounted.

During the past few years many carts have been accompanied by "putt-putt" instead of "clop-clop."

Sicily has been invaded by the threewheeled, one-crimder truck, and their owners have adorned the prow and sides as gaily as any cart. Why do away with the cart just because you gave up the
